

Dear xxx,

Running a successful radiation oncology practice is challenging enough without having to worry about losing revenue thanks to billing errors or insurance company hassles.

I know, because I've spent my career in the field of radiation oncology, both as a therapist and later in operations. You want to focus on delivering the best care to your patients, not putting out administrative fires. As president of RC Billing, that's where I can help.

RC Billing is the expert on the business aspects of medical and radiation oncology. Because we're specialists, we know how to identify and code every billable service and recoverable expense, and we'll follow up on denied insurance claims so that your revenue is maximized.

Our staff is well-versed in the intricacies of your practice. Because the RC Billing team is highly trained and current not only in the coding and billing of oncology services but also in the science of cancer, we understand the steps of your treatment process and specifics of timing. As president, I'm proud to say that RC Billing's culture is not only efficient and expert but is also empathetic. We care about our clients and we care about their patients, ensuring that claims are processed quickly and securely.

And RC Billing helps practices of all sizes—our staff will go the extra mile for a solo physician, a startup center building a clientele, or an established practice by providing hands-on, custom-tailored support.

Give me a call at xxx-xxx-xxxx or email me—I'd be happy chat about any questions or tell you more about how we can help take care of your practice while boosting your bottom line.

Regards,
